SCHOOL ELECTION NOT BY AUSTRALIAN BALLOT

BUT NOMINATIONS MUST BE BY PETITION—DISTRICT FOR PETITION—DISTRICT FOR NISHES BALLOTS.

The amendment to the general school law passed by the last legislature with reference to the form of ballot at school elections, does not adopt any form of the Australian ballot act, according to a statement issued Friday by Francis G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction.

Mr. Blair states that the amendment relates only to the form of the ballot which is to be furnished by the district, and provides that candidates for President and members of the board of education shall be nominated by petition and voted for by means of official ballot. There has been a popular misconception prevalent throughout the state to the effect that the change in the ballot amounted to the adoption of the Australian system in school elections. The principal reform brought about by the law is the elimination of "dark horse" candidates by requiring that nominations be made by petitions, which must be in the hands of the secretary at least ten days prior to the election. The petitions must be signed by ten percent of the legal voters in the district, but need not contain more than fifty signatures to make any petition valid.

DO YOU WANT YOUR GARBAGE REMOVED?

Have you an interest in Dixon? Do you own a home and do you want the air you breathe kept pure and the food you eat kept free of vicious germs? Have you little babies that you love and want to keep? Do you care for the respect and friendship of your neighbor? If you do, you want garbage removal. Dixon should have a free garbage removal system such as any city that pretends to be alive has. Clip out the coupon you will find below. Fill it out and if you want to you may have your neighbors sign it also. Write names and addresses plainly. Mail to or leave it at this office as soon as possible. It obligates you to nothing. It merely places you among the majority, the desirable citizens of Dixon. These coupons will be used to show the authorities that there is really a demand for free city garbage removal. If there is liberal support and many coupons are signed and sent in, we believe Dixon will get a garbage removal system. If not, Dixon will lose out. It is all up to you now. If you want it, say so.

THINK "FEDS" LACK IN CLASS

FULERTON SAYS NEW LEAGUE DOES NOT COMPARE WITH MAJORS

To my judgement, the Federal league teams do not at present quite class with the major league teams, says Fulerton. Yet the teams I have seen in training are so much better than anyone thought could be put together in so short a time that they are of a war is on in earnest and contracts are to be disregarded, one must admit that the Federal league teams are in position to pick players that they need to strengthen their teams.

The Federal league will draw wonderfully well in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Indianapolis at the start. What they will do in the east I cannot tell, not having had a chance to sound the tempo of the fans. I heard one wagger made that the Feds of St. Louis will outdraw the American and National leagues combined up to June 15, and I immediately offered to make the same offer as to Chicago.

What they will draw after June 15 depends entirely upon the kind of baseball they deliver. If they furnish first-class baseball they will continue to draw well.

But to the teams, Knabe of Baltimore appears to have the most consistent and best constructed team in the circuit, although not as strong in the pitching department as some others. Brooklyn is still in the making, having only the frame work of the real team. Pittsburgh, hampered by lack of funds at first, was delayed and lost the chance to strengthen, so it appears the weakest team on the list at present. Gesser has two major league stars promised him.

Weegham and Tinker deserve a lot of praise. They had the chance to pick the best of the league and clinch the pennant. They played fair with other clubs, sacrificed some of their own strength to aid others, and hooked up a lot of weak players where they might have had stars. It was good for the league, but not for the club. The club is spotty, strong in some places, weak in others. Its strong asset is a trio of great pitchers, Brennan, Seaton and Hendrix, who ought to keep the club right up with the leaders, regardless of the weaknesses of other places.

Manager Frank Chance applied the hook to six of his young Yankee hopefuls. Chance retained Burr, the star collegian and says he will make a great pitcher out of him.

Clark Griffith has at last rounded up a possible collection of pennant winners. He has a strong staff of catchers, some effective pitchers, a speedy infield and a fast outfield.

Little Arnold Hauser will never be able to play ball again is the doctor's verdict. Hauser was injured sliding to first two years ago and since then has been little good to the Cards. He is a Chicago boy and up to the time of his injury was considered as good short stop as there was in the National League, Wagner excepted.

Chas. Hite, a Cleveland pitcher until recently went under the name of Murphy, hurriedly changed to his real name when C. W. recently got before the public.

Chas. Herzog of the Cincinnati Reds has observed that his team has never had much life and says that he is going to have a lively bunch if nothing else. The new manager intends to have all stalling out and will be severe on all indolent athletes.

Lincoln Highway Notes

George E. Sherman, mayor of Fallon, Nevada, declares that in Nevada, the route of the Lincoln Highway is now being marked between Austin, Fallon, Hazen, Franklin and Blackwood Falls.

The city council of Kearney, Neb., has passed a resolution providing for the lighting of the city and particularly 25th street, which is a part of the Lincoln Highway. Over 100 lamps will be effected for Kearney's "Great White Way."

The city council of Columbus, Nebraska, has passed a resolution renaming of Olive street Lincoln Way. The resolution passed unanimously. Sixty four scouts of Detroit were addressed by A. R. Pardington, vice president of the Lincoln Highway Association, in Water Works Park. The boys have arranged to buy a contributor's certificate and will be given red, white and blue lapel bow badges.

At a meeting in Mansfield, Ohio, a special Lincoln Highway committee decided on the street to be designated "Lincoln Way." It is to be properly marked and the change of name will be brought to the attention of the city council for action.

When representatives of the Lincoln Highway Association go by automobile from New York to San Francisco next June, there will be receptions tendered at many points, citizens of LaPorte, Indiana, having already sent an invitation.

ECZEMA BROKE OUT IN WATER BLISTERS

Scratched It So Hard All Sore. On Hand, Then on Legs. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured in Six Weeks.

748 Congress St., Chicago, Ill. — "My eczema broke out like little water blisters. Each one was full of water and would itch until I would scratch it open, and then the water would run out and it would get sore. I first got the eczema on the back of the hand and I scratched it so hard I made it all sore. Then I got it on my legs just above the ankle and above the knee.

"I used what they call — and it stopped the itch but it got worse. Then I used — In all I had the trouble for about two years. One day I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper. I wrote for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I tried them and then bought some more. Cuticura Soap and Ointment left my sores nice and smooth. I used them for six weeks, and am now cured; the eczema left no marks." (Signed) F. W. Horrich, Oct. 19, 1912.

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery because they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. KING'S CROWN SAID TO BE AT STAKE IN COMING ELECTION.

(By Associated Press)

Stockholm, April 4.—Preparations for the election of a new Swedish parliament are in full swing with a tremendous wave of popular clamor for a stronger national defense aroused by fears of Russian aggression. Two parties—Conservative and Liberals—make this the dominant issue of the campaign but beneath this is a question deemed by Socialists as even more pregnant with immediate consequences than the possibility of invasion. It is declared in some quarters that the king's crown is at stake.

The point is that while the demand for stronger national defense has stirred the whole nation, some classes are apparently still more concerned in defending themselves against an excessive exercise of power by their King Gustave V.

The crisis on this point was brought about King's speech to a throng of 20,000 peasants who gathered in Stockholm on February 6 as a demonstration in favor of increased armaments. The king told the peasants that the problem of defense was one which must be solved without loss of time, and on that point he would not yield.

The King's speech was made in the face of warnings from the Crown Prince and Prince Charles, and, indeed, from a number of Conservative and Liberal party leaders. The Queen and some of the King's personal friends, however, advised His Majesty to make a speech as originally drawn up and their counsels prevailed.

The ministers forthwith resigned. They contended that as a constitutional monarch the King should not make political speeches without ascertaining if the cabinet approved of them. The King replied: "I cannot agree to this; I will not deprive myself the right to speak without restraint to the Swedish people."

Dr. Knut Hammerskjold was invited to form a new cabinet with himself as Premier and Minister of War, but as his adherents were in the minority in the Second Chamber there was no chance of the defense bill becoming law.

Parliament therefore was dissolved, and the issue placed before the people. The result is that the whole country is torn with the question of militarism and the constitution.

The Riksdag just dissolved consisted of 101 Liberals, 66 Conservatives and 64 Social Democrats.

AH! MY TIRED FEET
ACHED SO FOR "TIZ"

"How glorious 'TIZ' makes sore, swollen, sweaty, calloused feet feel."

"Just couldn't wait to take my hat off!"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunions-tortured feet of yours in a 'TIZ' bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that 'TIZ' bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try 'TIZ.' It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like 'TIZ.' It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of 'TIZ' at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

Refreshments were served at a late hour, after which a flash light was taken of the merry-makers.

The young people presented Frances with several beautiful gifts, for which she heartily thanked her friends. At a very late hour the guests tore themselves away, wishing Miss Frances many happy returns.

THIS LADY'S GOOD APPETITE

Mrs. Hansen, in a Letter From Mobile, Tells How She Gained It.

Mobile, Ala.—"I suffered for seven years, with womanly trouble," writes Mrs. Sigurd Hansen in a letter from this city. "I felt weak and always had a headache and was always going to the doctor. At last I was operated on, and felt better, but soon I had the same trouble."

My husband asked me to try Cardul. I felt better after the first bottle, and now, I have a good appetite and sleep well. I feel fine, and the doctor tells me I am looking better than he ever saw me."

If you are sick and miserable, and suffer from any of the pains due to womanly trouble—try Cardul.

Cardul is successful because it is composed of ingredients that have been found to act curatively on the womanly constitution.

For more than fifty years, it has been used by women of all ages, with great success. Try it. Your druggist sells it.

In responding to the toast "Why These Gentlemen are Practical Club Members" Mrs. C. H. Keyes referred to each member, giving a reason why each had selected a particular gentleman for her helpmate. ## UNITE IN TOLLS FIGHT Certain Democrats Say Republicans Will Aid Them.

Concerted Effort Being Made in the Senate to Unite Against President Wilson.

Washington, April 4.—The canal toll exemption controversy has reached the simmering stage in the senate pending consideration of the Sims repeal bill and proposed compromises by the committee on inter-oceanic canals next week. Leaders on both sides of the fight continued their activities, however, preparing for the final clash of the great legislative battle.

Among Republican senators who have been classified as doubtful, with regard to their intentions concerning the repeal there is a general tendency to line up against the president.

The Democrats while admitting that five of their number cannot be induced to abandon their opposition to the bill, insist there is every indication that all other majority senators eventually will support the bill. They also count on the support of such Republicans as Senators Root, Lodge, Burton and McCumber.

One Republican senator who will vote against the repeal bill said that he was confident the administration had the votes to carry out the repeal and that nothing would change the situation.

AGREE TO MINERS' DEMAND

Peoria, Ill., April 4.—For the first time in the history of joint conferences between miners and operators of Illinois the miners refused to leave the negotiations for the new contract to the scale committees of the two organizations, and insisted that the operators should meet the entire convention in session here at the Coliseum. The operators agreed to the demand. It is probable that it will be three weeks before a final scale of wages and working conditions are agreed upon. The miners formally presented their demands to the operators at the first session. The operators will offer a counter petition today.

BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Sowers' Own Statement.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."

Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT.

If the city commissioners really have any doubt as to whether Dixon people want the city to remove the garbage, which, by the way, we do not believe they have, we invite them to cast an eye over a few of the following messages sent to the Telegraph, along with many signed coupons which are streaming in daily:

Professor H. V. Baldwin, superintendent of the schools of North Dixon, writes when sending in his coupon: "Editor The Telegraph—By all means let us have a system of garbage removal for Dixon."

E. N. Howell, also of North Dixon, writes: "This is a very important project. Keep at it until we get it."

Charles Klepinger, of 221 Chamberlain St., writes: "I am particularly interested and pleased by the way you are fighting for 'Garbage Delivery.' It is the only way to have a clean and healthful city."

No, gentlemen, don't fool yourselves into the belief that Dixon is willing to wait forever to have the town cleaned up. They want it this summer, and as they are the ones who finally foot the bills, because they furnish the taxes that run this municipality, they ought to be shown consideration. We expect to be able to show the commissioners of Dixon that the men and women who want city garbage removal are legion. We expect enough of them to sign and send in the coupons to convince our officers of this fact. Sign them quickly, people, and send them in. It is a little thing for you to do, and it will most likely be productive of a lot of good for you.

VOTE INTELLIGENTLY.

In the excitement of the wet and dry fight next Tuesday, it behooves all voters, men and women, to remember that there are other questions to be decided.

There are many people who are so wrapped up in the one question that they have given the others no consideration, and the man or woman who marks any part of a ballot that he or she has not studied out is apt to do great damage.

Remember that there are candidates to be selected for various offices. If you are going to vote on them, and it is your solemn duty to do so, you should first find out who you want to vote for. In offices where there are contests, one man of the lot is the best. That man should be elected, and because the election is a minor one is no reason why it should not be given as careful thought as any.

The women of Illinois have a weapon put into their hands; hands that are untrained to its use, and it can be made a weapon that is deadly to the right if it is not carefully handled. The right to vote is a heavy responsibility. Everyone who can should vote, and no one should perform that serious act without first knowing whether they are right or wrong.

If Tuesday's election turns out the way judges of political matters declare it will, there will be a big demand for comfortable seats on the water wagon in Illinois, and it might be timely to suggest that if you want a good seat where you can enjoy the scenery, it would be well to reserve yours immediately.

THE PRIZE WINNERS

The Scientific American some time ago offered prizes of $150, $100 and $50 for the three best essays naming the ten greatest modern inventions and the reason for their choice. The award has been made and the first prize goes to William I. Wyman of Washington, D. C., for the following selection:

The electric furnace, which produces a heat so intense as to simulate the primary forces of nature. Among other things it has reduced the price of aluminum from over $12 per pound to less than 25 cents.

The steam turbine, which has effected great economies in steam consumption and in sending the reciprocating engine to the scrap heap.

The gasoline automobile, which has practically revolutionized methods of locomotion.

The moving picture, which is now an important factor in education and one of the principal sources of cheap and good amusement.

The aeroplane, the most radical innovation in the history of locomotion, threatening to revolutionize warfare and promising large possible commercial results.

Wireless telegraphy which has robbed the sea of most of its terrors and has done remarkable things in the field of world communication.

The cyanide process, which has revolutionized the metallurgy of the previous metals.

The induction motor, which made possible the utilization and transmission of alternating current is largely responsible for the substitution of electric for steam power in the industries and has conserved from 30 to 60 per cent of the energy formerly wasted in whirling line shafting and belting.

The linotype, which has made it possible to set type almost ten times as rapidly as before.

Electric welding, making it easy to join the most antagonistic metals safely, surely and swiftly.—Yates City.

If Secretary Bryan's Llama hadn't developed mouth and foot disease, and so necessitated its deportation, the South American "goat" might have been pressed into service as the emblem of the democratic party, and given the over-worked donkey a vacation.

Abe Martin says, "What's become o' th' old-time merchant that used t' set a tubful o' dried apples an' a keg o' mackerel in front o' his store and then go t' sleep?"

He's either started t' advertisin' in th' daily newspapers, Abe, or he's ha da sheriff's notice tacked ont' th' front door.

March went out like a muskrat, according to an exchange. Now what's that a sign of?

Mr. Horse

By WALT MASON

The good old horse, of sterling worth, has not yet fallen off the earth. I notice by the public prints that steeds of all the standard tints, strawberry, roan, claybank and bay, buff, cochin, black and dappled gray, bring just as much as horses brung before your motor cars were sprung. When something new has come to pass, some engine-driven thing of brass, some cart that eats up gasoline instead of browsing on the green, the prophets say, "This spells the end of Dobbin, man's old trusty friend! This gives the last, the final jolt, to every gelding, mare and colt! The equine tribe might just as well sit quiet while we toll its knell. For traveling, the motor car, than any horse is better far; and when it comes to heavy freight the motor truck can hit the gait; so there's no place on earth, indeed, for any bald-faced sorrel steed." And yet the steeds refuse to creep, heart-broken, to the rubbish heap. Their heads and tails are high in the air, and they are wanted everywhere. They caper, beautiful and nice, commanding such a gorgeous price bologna makers can't afford to purchase samples from the horde.

CURRENT COMMENT

FLIES.

There is a move on foot to knock out the house fly. The scientists, bacteriologists, and health officers are after the house fly, and say that it is only a question of time until they have her going South.

Our sympathies are entirely with the knockers, but we are not betting on them. If we were to bet at all, cash on the house fly.

The female house fly, which is really the only member of the family worth considering, is a bird of great perseverance and marvelous productive power. She can rise in the morning, knock the dust out of her eyes with her front legs, then settle down to business, and by evening be the mother of some seven million anxious and energetic children. By the third day all of these offspring are ready to start in business on their own hook. It is very hard to keep up with a productive female of that kind. It is believed, however, that by doctored breeding places of the house fly her eggs can be destroyed before they are hatched, and in this way the family can be gradually exterminated.

As we have said, our sympathies are entirely with the knockers. The house fly has no redeeming traits of character that we have ever discovered. She is the personification of insolence, and as a butter-in is without a peer. She is a foe to health and religion. She scatters disease and provokes unseemly profanity.

Crude oil is said to be fatal to the offspring of the fly. Crude oil, mixed with the manure heap would make it impossible for the fly to build her nest there and rear her young. Down with the house fly!—The Farmer's Mail.

BORNEO.

H. H. Pitcairn is an American engineer who has been for a year and a half in Borneo engaged in building a railroad.

"There are very few white men in the country," said Mr. Pitcairn. "and the natives are of the kind one sees in the remotest portions of the Philippines. They still have their little head-hunting parties, and the government sees fit to overlook these little excursions, provided no white man gets hurt. The whole country is being rapidly put into rubber. Borneo has the advantage of the Philippines in that rubber can be produced within four years. This is due to the climate. Then North Borneo never has a typhoon, or even a storm, so that the young trees are not forever being shorn of their branches or torn up."

"I have been out in that part of the world a great many years," said Mr. Pitcairn. "I went out with our troops to the Philippines as an officer in the volunteers. Then for a time I was assistant engineer of the city of Manila. Life is rather primitive in Borneo. About the only excitement is furnished by the crocodiles. Just about a month before I left one killed the 12-year old son of my pilerdriver foreman. Then, as is their habit, the natives turned out in force and killed crocodiles until they had the criminal. You can usually detect the offender by the brass bracelets you find inside him, for the natives go in a lot for this sort of decoration. The curious thing is that when the natives have killed the crocodile which has killed a child or grown-up person they forget the incident to go in bathing freely among the reptiles until somebody else falls a victim when another killing party is organized. The week before I left a crocodile got among a party of children and swallowed a little girl. Two days later I passed by the spot and I saw a lot of children bathing here. I have heard a lot of talk about the possibility of trouble among the Mohammedans of Java, and the fear of the scant white population there that the 40,000,000 followers of the prophet are planning something, but there is no fear of trouble in Borneo. One of my assistants was a Mohammedan, and one of his wives is a daughter of the Sultan of Johora. The unrest that is affecting Java has not even reached Sarawak, where Rajah Brooke, the Englishman, holds sway. Agents of the Dutch Colonial Petroleum company are now prospecting that country for oil. Rajah Brooke, by the way, holds absolute sway over his dominion, although under a British protectorate. He spends half his time in London. His son and his grandson are booked to succeed him to his throne in turn. I have seen the rajah. He looks like an ordinary, prosperous English man. He has perhaps a dozen or two white subjects, and there are a dozen or so missionaries in his country, and, while he can order anyone killed if he wishes, he has a very good government. The native's rights are zealously guarded out there. While I was in North Borneo a white doctor who had been robbed, tortured a patient whom he suspected and made him confess he had stolen the articles and return them. The doctor was tried and sentenced to jail. There was no jail, however, so the doctor was put in a house. Now, out there the British authorities will not have a native put over white men in any way, so while there were many native policemen, there was no white man to guard the prisoner. The court finally told the doctor to guard himself. He used to stroll down to the hotel whenever he was so minded, and sit on the porch in the afternoons. Finally, his case got to be such a joke that they banished him from the country. The only real punishment they inflicted upon him was to get the Royal Medical Society to take away his license to practice.

DANGERS OF THE BATHTUB

According to Dr. Elmer Lee, writing in a current magazine, bathing is an acquired habit and like some other acquired habits unnecessary and even harmful. Cold or hot water showers, he tells us, sprays and any form of immersion will be injurious in the end. It is the doctor's contention that man is an air animal, not a water creature. "A bathtub is an enemy in the house," says this medical sage. "It is expensive and adds to the toils of woman. Bathing begets false security against disease, weakens and injures the skin, extracts bodily energy and magnetism and entails on society a needless habit."

A good deal that isn't truth comes out of the mouths of medical men. So Elmer Lee suddenly perceives that man is not a water animal and straightaway he jumps to the conclusion that it is unnatural and unhealthy for man to bathe. His conception might apply to primitive man, but it does not dovetail in with the twentieth century. The primitive man did not wear clothes. The exercise of the chase kept his body in condition, promoted profuse perspiration, and the air did the rest. But let a man, clothed in reek to toes with air-defying clothes, imitate a primitive man and he would soon lose the "magnetism" Dr. Lee speaks of so eloquently. If Dr. Lee should have to ride in a closed car in company with a carload of non-bathers he would change his mind in stenter concerning the necessity of bathing.

No, Dr. Lee, you will have to amend your theory; it doesn't hold water in this age of the world.—Rochester Post-Express.

EACH ILLINOIS D COSTS STATE $1,000

It will have cost the state of Illinois $1,000 to educate each of the 600 seniors, who are likely to receive diplomas from the University of Illinois this year. The tuition paid by these student representatives only about one-tenth of the amount each one costs the state. Members of the senior class were informed of these statistics in order that they might have a proper idea of their debt to the state.

THE NEW GAME LAW.

West Brooklyn, Mich. 12, '14.

Editor Telegraph,
Dixon, Illinois.

Dear Sir:

In reading the West Brooklyn News last night I saw an article written by Sheriff Reid which is a great credit to a man of his standing. His views and mine are the same on every point which he brought to view.

This new game law is not a credit to any administration and I was surprised when I heard that Wilson had signed it after passing other laws which would have been a credit to any president. This new law is going to make men who respected other laws, break laws that are a benefit to the nation and probably thereafter disregard other laws.

As far as the duck hunting is concerned, it is but one of the minor things a nation has to contend with, and any man can readily understand that the hunters of Illinois are deriving no benefit whatsoever from this new law.

Ducks are around this part of the country from a couple of days to two weeks and then they are so wary it takes a good hunter to get close enough to them to get one or two. This law might be all right along the main streams of the country but for the rest of the people to be punished because some gun club man can kill or really slaughter more than he will need is not using the people fairly.

This country is supposed to be ruled by the people and for the people and this law is, in my estimation entirely contrary to that.

It is the people of this part of the state who feed those wildfowl during their migratory flight and therefore I believe it no more than right that we should have duck for dinner occasionally.

The present state law of Illinois is about as good a law in regard to wild game as any state has and it showed no partiality to anyone.

Furthermore, during the fall flight of wild game they fly high and there is not much danger of any being killed. During this last fall ducks were in this vicinity less than a week and many the hunter who came back with an empty game sack.

And another thing, where is there a boy who does not like to carry "Pa's" gun on his shoulder in search of the wary duck? Perhaps if he should get one he would be the "biggest man in his school."

A COMMON HUNTER.

CO. G GIVEN INSPECTION.

The members of Co. G. were given one of the most thorough inspections they have ever had last evening by Lieut. John G. Maul, U. S. A., and the thoroughness of the inspection and the advice given by the regular army officer were very gratifying to the militiamen. Every member of the company was present or accounted for and the officers and men anticipate good results from the investigation. A number of citizens witnessed the work.

DIXON IS ON THE "LINCOLN HIGHWAY"

"THIS IS DIXON" SIGNS ERECTED

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION ERECTS BOARDS AT CITY'S ENTRANCES

That wide-awake body of local citizens known as the Dixon Citizens' Association has caused to be erected at the east and west entrances of the Lincoln highway into our beautiful city two large signs. These signs are painted with the red, white and blue bands which are the colors of all prominent Lincoln Highway monuments.

The signs are worded as follows: "This is Dixon, Illinois, on the Beautiful Rock River. Population 10,000; Cedar Rapids, 113 miles; Chicago, 104 miles; San Francisco, 2355 miles, New York, 1033 miles.

The idea of informing the "stranger at our gates" that this city is on the map and impressing him with the fact that we form a prominent feature of the afore-said map is a splendid one. Many progressive cities are adopting the idea but are locating similar signs in view of railway tracks on the outskirts of their town. Some of these signs are mammoth in size and serve their purpose day and night as they are electric lighted. It is likely that the local signs will also be illuminated at night.

MOOSE WILL AID LINCOLN HIGHWAY

ROAD PASSING MOOSEHEART TO BE BUILT BY THE ORGANIZATION

Detroit, Mich. April 4.—Word has been received at the national headquarters of the Lincoln Highway Association here, from the board of governors of the Loyal Order of Moose of the World, that the Order will build at its own expense a section of the Lincoln Highway passing through Mooseheart, Ill., the order's home.

The governors state that the value of this great highway to their establishment, can scarcely be estimated in dollars and cents, as it puts Mooseheart on the direct line of tourist travel between New York and San Francisco, and will allow thousands of Moore automobile enthusiasts to reach the Mecca of the Order by the shortest and quickest route.

As a result of this action by the supreme authority of the fraternity the Kane County Road Commissioners have agreed to at once do their part and a resolution has been passed providing for the building of the complete road from Aurora to Geneva as soon as possible. On April 15th special ceremonies will mark the first work on the section of the road passing Mooseheart.

That the Highway will be ready for tourist travel by the opening of the great San Francisco Exposition, is now practically assured as the Association is receiving financial aid in growing volume from interested and patriotic individuals the nation over.

GOOD ROADS MEAN BETTER SCHOOLS

LINCOLN HIGHWAY AND BRANCHES WILL HELP RURAL EDUCATION.

The percent of illiteracy among the white native population of the cities of this country is less than one. The same test among the same classes in the country shows five hundred percent more illiteracy. This amazing difference is attributed largely to the high cost of living.

The Lincoln Highway Association, that great national patriotic movement for good roads the country over is devoting its present activities to the building and improving of the great transcontinental route between New York and San Francisco. Individuals, corporations and states are lending financial support to this great project, and contributions from all over the country are constantly pouring in to the national headquarters of the Association in Detroit.

The Lincoln Way is crystallizing sentiment, and with this great memorial improved and standing as an everlasting tribute to the great American whose name it bears, it will serve as an example and an inspiration for other roads, reaching like arteries of progress and prosperity, education and commerce to every distant point and secluded village of our country and binding it even more closely together in that union which Lincoln fostered and preserved.

Nothing in recent years except possibly the Panama canal is of so much importance to the people of the United States as the Lincoln highway, the magnificent roadway being built entirely across the country from New York to San Francisco.

It is a big project. It is as big as the whole people and will be a lasting memorial to one of the country's great men. Besides this it will be a wonderful stimulus to the movement for good roads now active in many states.

Its completion will mean the longest substantial roadway in the world and it will offer untold benefits, for from it will eventually amply arms and extensions into every section of the country.

It is entitled to and should receive the support not only of every automobile owner but every good citizen.

where honor is due.

The Lincoln highway is a gigantic proposition conceived as a more enduring memorial to a country's great than any statue of useless marble, as well as an economical proposition of value to the entire country.

It is in the hands of public spirited American citizens who have in mind only the completion of a merited project which will stimulate the good roads movement in America.

It will succeed because of these things and it deserves the support of every American citizen whether he is the owner of an automobile or not.

It is a big thing and a big thing should receive the support of a big people. Its measure for good is incalculable for while it is laid out as a transcontinental roadway, its influence in the district through which it passes will extend to neighborhoods and cities far beyond for without a doubt connecting branches will be built from time to time until in the end a network of roads will extend throughout the United States greater even than any of the far famed road systems of the old world.

Support the Lincoln highway and in so doing you support the good roads movement of the nation.

FEAR SEALER IS LOST

Steamer Southern Cross Missing With Crew of 170 Men.

Other Ship Reports Loss—Message Tells of Death of 77 in Blizzard—12 Rescued.

St. Johns, N. F., April 4.—Without word from the sealing steamer Southern Cross fear grows that its crew of 170 men had been added to the toll of Tuesday's blizzard in which 77 men of the sealer Newfoundland lost their lives.

The number of the Newfoundland's dead was learned definitely with the further possibility that several of the 112 who were rescued would succumb to the effects of the 48 hours' exposure. Arrangements have been made for the reception of the rescue ship Bella-venture, which is expected to arrive today, bringing most of the dead and many of the survivors.

In an effort to solve the mystery of the disappearance of the Southern Cross the Newfoundland government has asked the American revenue cutter Seneca to leave the ice patrol and search for the missing sealer. The coastal steamer Kyle, which has a wireless equipment, was fitted out here for a cruise along the southeastern coast, off which the Southern Cross was last seen on Tuesday morning a few hours before the three days' blizzard set in.

"MOTHER" JONES HITS JAIL

Denver, Colo., April 4.—On the eve of her attorney's filing of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the state supreme court, "Mother" Mary Jones, the aged strike leader, who has been confined in the basement of Walsenburg courthouse for more than a week, smuggled a letter through the military guard to Horace N. Hawkins, her counsel, in Denver.

The original copy, said Hawkins, was sent to General Villa, the Mexican revolutionist, who is a personal acquaintance of hers.

She calls the prison a military "bull pen" and says her lot is to be kept in a rat-infested dungeon.

VOCATIONAL AGENT FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

EDUCATOR SAYS AGENCY IS NECESSARY FOR THE PUPIL.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Apr. 1.—The establishment of vocational bureaus in connection with the public schools system of the various cities and towns of Iowa and the middle west, was advocated in an address delivered by Meyer Bloomfield, director of the Vocational Bureau of Boston, before the North East Iowa Teachers' Association here tonight.

Mr. Bloomfield, after outlining what had been accomplished by the Bureau since its establishment declared that the vocational idea is spreading rapidly throughout the country.

"The public school is the logical starting point for the work of vocational guidance," said Mr. Bloomfield. "Here the child is under daily observation, and the problems of the family make themselves known in countless ways. Our proposition is that just as we have added to the school the nurse, physician, play supervisor and other agencies of enhanced modern demand, we need to supplement the teacher's insight into the character and attainments of her pupils by the practical co-operation of a vocational counselor in touch with the demands, the conditions and the opportunities of the world of work, in touch with the intimate details of the families in a particular school neighborhood, and working hand in hand with the teacher, parent and later the employer, in investing to the utmost the boy's training and possibilities."

Mr. Bloomfield said that the vocational bureau which he has charge is advising with many people who come to its offices for consultation as to vocations, choice and educational training; in cooperation with the Boston school authorities it has established an important course for counselors and has led the way of a large vocational training course in a great university.

INDECENT CLOTHES OBJECT OF ATTACK

RATS, FREAK ART AND POOR PHYSIQUE ALSO TAKEN UP BY FRENCH.

(By Associated Press.) Paris, April 3.—Paris is being stirred up by four new movements. Rats, immoral clothes, freak art, and undeveloped physique are all to be combatted by organized forces.

While the League of Patriotic French Women has taken up the gage against indecent clothes, a reaction has also come to the great vogue of Cubism. Post-Impressionism, Futurism and other advanced aesthetic art schools. A group of artists who hold ultra-academical principles has been formed. They declare they have felt neglected, and they have decided at last to make themselves heard. A new salon is to be formed, for even the present official salons show tendencies towards the new heterodox schools.

Some prominent artists are behind the movement which likely will constitute a strong revolt against revolutionary art. The majority of critics, while by no means accepting all the claims of the Cubists and Futurists, freely admit that they have let an and light into the dry places of art, and that exhibitions from which they are excluded seem dull and tame. In spite of their extravagances, they have succeeded in becoming very prominent.

The attitude of the general public is interjectory, if not respectful; there is little tendency to condemn off-hand; and that is a clear gain to the innovators.

For Better Men.

Some of the most prominent men in France have come to the support of athletic renaissance. A national league, to aid in the development of physical education has just been founded.

A propaganda in favor of physical education will be carried out in several days. Lectures and practical demonstrations will be given. The cinematograph will be utilized to show the various stages of development of athletics by leaders in this branch of sports. The league will give its aid to such organizations as wish to become allied with it, and will do everything possible to put the country in a leading position in athletics.

Paris has also begun a war of extermination of rats. It is estimated that no less than three million rodents infest the city. The public market and the stock yards are over run by the pests.

Dramatic Notes

"THE GIRL AND THE TRAMP."

A great many travelling theatre companies have fallen into the habit of refusing to use their special scenery when playing small cities where the stage accommodations are limited. But when Geo. E. Barton, producer of the laughing comedy success "The Girl and the Tramp" turned the show over to the company manager they gave him strict orders to use all the scenery wherever the company played.

The directing manager is so exacting on this point that he has the local theatre managers in report to the home office if instructions have been full-filled. If this order has been violated in the smallest detail, the party responsible receives a reprimand in the way of a heavy fine that is not soon forgotten. So our local theatre-goers may look forward to a full and complete scenic production when "The Girl and the Tramp" comes to the Dixon Opera House next Sunday night, April 5th.

FAMILY THEATRE.

The Five Rose Maids now playing at the Family is an act far above the ordinary and worthy of special mention. The musical numbers, vocal and instrumental, are executed with ability which shows thorough training. The soprano soloist possesses a remarkable voice which is used to excellent advantage. The wardrobe and stage setting are beautiful.

Chester Hoover, character change artist, completes the bill.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Challis Wrاندall is found murdered in a road house near New York. Mrs. Wrاندall is summoned from the city and identifies the body. A young woman who accompanied Wrاندall to the road house and subsequently disappeared is suspected. Wrاندall, it appears, had led a gay life and neglected his wife. Mrs. Wrاندall starts back for New York in an auto during a blinding snow storm.

CHAPTER II—On the way she meets a young woman in the road who proves to be the woman who killed Wrاندall. Feeling that the girl had done her a service in hiding her from the police, she offers her the girl ever to tell her. She offers Hetty a home, friendship and security from peril on account of the tragedy.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Wrاندall hears the story of Hetty Castleton's life, except that portion that relates to Wrاندall. The story of the tragedy she forbids the girl ever to tell her. She offers Hetty a home, friendship and security from peril on account of the tragedy.

CHAPTER IV—Mrs. Sara Wrاندall and Hetty attend the funeral of Challis Wrاندall at the home of his parents. Sara had always been treated as an interloper by the snobbish Wrاندall family, but the tragedy seems to draw them closer together.

A little later she whispered brokenly in Sara's ear: "My dear, my dear, this has brought us together. I hope you will learn to love me."

Sara caught her breath, but uttered no word. She looked into her mother-in-law's eyes, and smiled through her tears. The Wrاندalls, looking on in amazement, saw the smile reflected in the face of the older woman. Then it was that Vivian crossed quickly and put her arms about the shoulders of her sister-in-law. The white flag on both sides.

Hetty Castleton stood alone and wavering, just inside the door. No stranger situation could be imagined than the one in which this unfortunate girl found herself at the present moment. She was virtually in the hands of those who would destroy her; she was in the house of those who most deeply were affected by her act on that fatal night. Among them all she stood, facing them, listening to the moans and sobs, and yet her limbs did not give way beneath her.

Some one gently touched her arm. It was Leslie. She shrank back, a fearful look in her eyes. In the semidarkness he failed to note the expression.

"Won't you sit here?" he asked, indicating the little pink divan against the wall. "Forgive me for letting you stand so long."

She looked about her, the wild light still in her eyes. She was like a rat in a trap.

Her lips parted, but the word of thanks did not come forth. A strange, inarticulate sound, almost a gasp, came instead. Pallid as a ghost, she dropped limply to the divan, and dug her fingers into the satiny seat. As if fascinated, she stared over the black heads of the three women immediately in front of her at the full-length portrait hanging where the light from the hall fell upon it: the portrait of a dashing youth in riding togs.

A moment later Sara Wrاندall came over and sat beside her. The girl shivered as with a mighty chill when the warm hand of her friend fell upon hers and enveloped it in a firm clasp. "His mother kissed me," whispered Sara. "Did you see?"

The girl could not reply. She could only stare at the open door. A small, hunched man had come up from below and was nodding his head to Leslie Wrاندall—a man with short side whiskers, and a sepulchral look in his eyes. Then, having received a sign from Leslie, he tiptoed away. Almost instantly the voices of people singing softly came from some distant remote part of the house.

And then, a little later, the perfectly modulated voice of a man in prayer.

Back of her, Wrاندalls; beside her, Wrاندalls; beneath her, friends of the Wrاندalls; outside, the rabble, those who would join with these black, raven-like specters in tearing her to pieces if they but knew!

The droning voice came up from below, each well-chosen word distinct and clear: tribute beautiful to the irreproachable character of the deceased. Leslie watched the face of the girl, curiously fascinated by the set, emotionless features, and yet without a conscious interest in her. She was dully sensible to the fact that she was beautiful, uncommonly beautiful. It did not occur to him to feel that she was out of place among them, that she belonged down stairs. Somehow she was a part of the surroundings, like the specter at the feast.

If he could have witnessed all that transpired while Sara was in the room below with her guest—her companion, as he had come to regard her without having in fact been told as much—he would have been lost in a maze of the most overwhelming emotions.

To go back: The door had barely closed behind the two women when Hetty's trembling knees gave way beneath her. With a low moan of horror, she slipped to the floor, covering her face with her hands.

Sara knelt beside her. "Come," she said gently, but firmly; "I must exact this much of you. If we are to go on together, as we have planned, you must stand beside me at his bier. Together we must look upon him for the last time. You must see him as I saw him up there in the country. I had my cruel blow that night. It is your turn now. I will not blame you for what you did. But if you expect me to go on believing that you did a brave thing that night, you must convince me that you are not a coward now. It is the only test I shall put you to. Come; I know it is hard. I know it is terrible, but it is the true test of your ability to go through with it to the end. I shall know then that you have the courage to face anything that may come up."

She waited a long time, her hand on the girl's shoulder. At last Hetty arose.

"You are right," she said hoarsely. "I should not be afraid."

Later on they sat over against the wall beyond the casket, into which they had peered with widely varying emotions. Sara had said: "You know that I loved him."

The girl put her hands to her eyes and bowed her head.

"Oh, how can you be so merciful to me?"

"Because he was not," said Sara, white-lipped. Hetty glanced at the half-averted face with queer, indescribable expression in her eyes.

If Leslie Wrاندall could have looked in upon them at that moment, or at any time during the half an hour that followed, he would have known who was the slayer of his brother, but it is doubtful if he could have had the heart to denounce her to the world.

When they were ready to leave the room Hetty had regained control of her nerves to a most surprising extent, a condition unmistakably due to the influence of the older woman.

"I can trust myself now, Mrs. Wrاندall," said Hetty steadily as they hesitated for an instant before turning the knob of the door.

"Then I shall ask you to open the door," said Sara, drawing back.

Without a word or a look, Hetty opened the door and permitted the other to pass out before her. Then she followed, closing it gently, even deliberately, but not without a swift glance over her shoulder into the depths of the room they were leaving.

Of the two, Sara Wrاندall was the paler as they went up the broad staircase with Leslie.

The funeral oration by the Rev. Dr. Maltby dragged on. Among all his hearers there was but one who believed the things he said of Challis Wrاندall, and she was one of two persons who, so they saying goes, are the last to find a man out; his mother and his sister. But in this instance the mother was alone. The silent, attentive guests on the lower floor listened in grim approval: Dr. Maltby was doing himself proud. Not one but all of them knew that Maltby knew. And yet how soothing he was.

By the end of the week the murder of Challis Wrاندall was forgotten by all save the police. The inquest was over, the law was baffled, the city was serenely waiting for its next sensation. No one cared.

Leslie Wrاندall went down to the steamer to see his sister-in-law off for Europe.

"Goodbye, Miss Castleton," he said, as he shook the hand of the slim young Englishwoman at parting. "Take good care of Sara. She needs a friend, a good friend, now. Keep her over there until she has—forgotten."

CHAPTER V.

Discussing a Sister-in-Law.

"You remember my sister-in-law, don't you, Brandy?" was the question that Leslie Wrاندall put to a friend one afternoon, as they sat drowsily in a window of one of the fashionable uptown clubs, a little more than a year after the events described in the foregoing chapters. Drearly, I have said, for the reason that it was Sunday, and raining at that.

"I met Mrs. Wrاندall a few years ago in Rome," said his companion, renewing interest in a conversation that had died some time before of its own exhaustion. "She's most attractive. I saw her but once. I think it was at somebody's fete."

"She's returning to New York the end of the month," said Leslie. "Been abroad for over a year. She had a villa at Nice this winter."

"I remember her quite well. I was of an age then to be particularly sensitive to female loveliness. If I'd been staying on in Rome, I should have screwed up the courage, I'm sure, to have asked her to sit for me."

Brandon Booth was of an old Philadelphia family: an old and wealthy family. Both views considered, he was qualified to walk hand in glove with the fastidious Wrاندalls. Leslie's mother was charmed with him because she was also the mother of Vivian. The fact that he went in for portrait painting and seemed averse to subsisting on the generosity of his father, preferring to live by his talent, in no way operated against him, so far as Mrs. Wrاندall was concerned.

That was his lookout, not hers; if he elected to that sort of thing, all well and good. He could afford to be eccentric; there remained, in the perspective he scorned, the bulk of a huge fortune to offset whatever idiosyncrasies he might choose to cultivate. Some day, in spite of himself, she contended serenely, he would be very, very rich. What could be more desirable than fame, family and fortune all heaped together and thrust upon one exceedingly interesting and handsome young man?

He had been the pupil of celebrated draftsmen and painters in Europe, and had exhibited a sincerity of purpose that was surprising, all things considered. The mere fact that he was not obliged to paint in order to obtain a living was sufficient cause for wonder among the artists he met and studied with or under.

His studio in New York was not a fashionable resting place. It was a workshop. You could have tea there, of course, and you were sure to meet people you knew and liked, but it was quite as much of a workshop as any you could mention. He was not a dabbler in art, not a mere dauber of pigments: he was an artist.

Booth was thirty—perhaps a year or two older; tall, dark and good looking. The air of the thoroughbred marked him. He did not affect loose, flowing cravats and baggy trousers, nor was he careless about his fingernails. He was simply the ordinary, every-day sort of chap you would meet in Fifth avenue during parade hours, and you would take a second look at him because of his face and manner but not on account of his dress. Some of his ancestors came over ahead of the Mayflower, but he did not gloat.

Leslie Wrاندall was his closest friend and harshest critic. It didn't really matter to Booth what Leslie said of his paintings: he quite understood that he didn't know anything about them.

"When does Mrs. Wrاندall return?" asked the painter, after a long period of silence spent in contemplation of the gleaming pavement beyond the club's window.

"That's queer," said Leslie, looking up. "I was thinking of Sara myself. She sails next week. I've had a letter asking me to open her house in the country. Her place is about two miles from father's. It hasn't been opened in two years. Her father built it fifteen or twenty years ago, and left it to her when he died. She and Challis spent several summers there."

"Vivian took me through it one afternoon last summer."

"It must have been quite as much of a novelty to her as it was to you, old chap," said Leslie gloomily.

"What do you mean?"

"Vivian's a bit of a snob. She never liked the place because old man Gooch built it out of worsteds. She never went there."

"But the old man's been dead for years."

"That doesn't matter. The fact is, Vivian didn't quite take to Sara until after—well, until after Challis died. We're dreadful snobs, Brandy, the whole lot of us. Sara was quite good enough for a much better man than my brother. She really couldn't help the worsteds, you know. I'm very fond of her, and always have been. We're pals. 'Gad, it was a fearful slap at the home folks when Challis justified Sara by getting snuffed out the way he did."

Booth made an attempt to change the subject, but Wrاندall got back to it.

"Since then we've all been exceedingly sweet on Sara. Not because we want to be, mind you, but because we're afraid she'll marry some chap who wouldn't be acceptable to us."

"I should consider that a very neat way out of it," said Booth coldly.

"Not at all. You see, Challis was fond of Sara, in spite of everything. He left a will and under it she came in for all he had. As that includes a third interest in our extremely refined and irreproachable business, it would be a deuce of a trick on us if she married one of the common people and set him up amongst us, willy-nilly. We don't want strange bedfellows. We're too snug—and I might say, too snug."

Down in her heart mother is saying to herself it would be just like Sara to get even with us by doing just that sort of a trick. Of course Sara is rich enough without accepting a sou under the will, but she's a canny person. She hasn't handed it back to us on a silver platter, with thanks; still, on the other hand, she refuses to meddle. She makes us feel pretty small. She won't set out to us. She just sits tight. That's what gets under the skin with mother."

"I wouldn't say that, Les, if I were in your place."

"It is a rather priggish thing to say, isn't it?"

"Rather."

"You see, I'm the only one who really took sides with Sara. I forget myself sometimes. She was such a brick, all those years."

Booth was silent for a moment, noting the reflective look in his companion's eyes.

"I suppose the police haven't given up the hope that sooner or later the woman will do something to give herself away," said he.

"They don't take any stock in my theory that she made way with herself the same night. I was talking with the chief yesterday. He says that anyone who had wit to cover up her tracks as she did, is not the kind to make way with herself. Perhaps he's right. It sounds reasonable. 'Gad, I felt sorry for the poor girl they had up last spring. She went through the third degree, if ever anyone did, but, by Jove, she came out of it all right. The Ashtley girl, you remember. I've dreamed about that girl, Brandy, and what they put her through. It's a sort of nightmare to me, even when I'm awake. Oh, they've questioned others as well, but she was the only one to have the screws twisted in just that way."

"Where is she now?"

"She's comfortable enough now. When I wrote to Sara about what she'd been through, she settled a neat bit of money on her, and she'll never want for anything. She's out west somewhere, with her mother and sisters. I tell you, Sara's a wonder. She's got a heart of gold."

"I look forward to meeting her, old man."

"I was with her for a few weeks this winter. In Nice, you know. Vivian stayed on for a week, but mother had to get to the baths. 'Gad, I believe she hated to go. Sara's got a most adorable girl staying with her. A daughter of Colonel Castleton, and she's connected in some way with the Murgatroyds—old Lord Murgatroyd, you know. I think her mother was a niece of the old boy. Anyhow, mother and Vivian have taken a great fancy to her. That's proof of the pudding."

"I think Vivian mentioned a companion of some sort."

"You wouldn't exactly call her a companion," said Leslie. "She's got money to burn, I take it. Quite keeps up with Sara in making it fly, and that's saying a good deal for her resources. I think it's a pose on her part, this calling herself a companion. An English joke, eh? As a matter of fact, she's an old friend of Sara's and my brother's too. Knew them in England. Most delightful girl. Oh, I say, old man, she's the one for you to paint. Leslie waxed enthusiastic. "A type, a positive type. Never saw such eyes in all my life. Dammit, they haunt you. You dream about 'em."

"You seem to be hard hit," said Booth indifferently. He was watching the man in the "slicker" through moody eyes.

"Oh, nothing like that," disclaimed Leslie with unnecessary promptness. "But if I were given to that sort of thing, I'd be bowled over in a minute. Positively adorable face. If I thought you had it in you to paint a thing as it really is I'd commission you myself to do a miniature for me, just to have it around where I could pick it up when I liked and hold it between my hands, just as I've often wanted to hold the real thing."

Sara Wrاندall returned to New York at the end of the month, and Leslie met her at the dock, as he did on an occasion fourteen months earlier. Then she came in on a fierce gale from the wintry Atlantic; this time the air was soft and balmy and sweet with the kindness of spring. It was May and the sea was blue, the land was green.

Again she went to the small, exclusive hotel near the park. Her apartment was closed, the butler and his wife and all of their hastily recruited company being in the country, awaiting her arrival from town. Leslie attended to everything. He lent his resourceful man servant and his motor to his lovely sister-in-law, and saw to it that his mother and Vivian sent flowers to the ship. Redmond Wrاندall called at the hotel immediately after banking hours, kissed his daughter-in-law, and delivered an ultimatum second-hand from the power at home: she was to come to dinner and bring Miss Castleton. A little quiet family dinner, you know, because they were all in mourning, he said in conclusion, vaguely realizing all the while that it really wasn't necessary to supply the information, but, for the life of him, unable to think of anything else to say under the circumstances. Somehow it seemed to him that while Sara was in black she was not in mourning in the same sense that the rest of them were. It seemed only right to acquaint her with the conditions in his household. And he knew that he deserved the scowl that Leslie bestowed upon him.

Sara accepted, much to his surprise and gratification. He had been rather dubious about it. It would not have surprised him in the least if she had declined the invitation, feeling, as he did, that he had in a way come to her with a white flag or an olive branch

Synopsis of Chapters I and II—Muriel married Gerald York, head of the Government Detective Bureau, a man of international fame. Absorbed in the capture of the Revolution, he neglects Muriel. By chance she meets Eric Leblanc, leader of the Revolutionists, at the Cafe Metropole. His alias, Baron de Corri, hides his identity. Hungering for Muriel, he admires her and accepts his card. The meeting sets the two into a series of adventures. The next day they meet at the Museum. A revolutionary spy hears that York has a photograph and finger prints of Leblanc; Leblanc decides to enter York's house and secure them. Muriel, however, saves the morning and her engagement with Leblanc. York is closing the net around the gang that plot the overthrow of the King.

CHAPTER III.
Muriel and Eric met, as they had arranged, at the Museum. Both acted almost like children. They laughed and strolled about the quiet corridors hung with old masterpieces. York has a photograph and finger prints of Leblanc; Leblanc decides to enter York's house and secure them. Muriel, however, saves the morning and her engagement with Leblanc. York is closing the net around the gang that plot the overthrow of the King.

ing? He would learn, and so he sought her room to fathom the mystery. He found the card—Baron Osear de Corri. Instantly he was made jealous. The entire reason flashed across his mind. Now he knew the "reason" for this change of heart. He, however, did not mention the card to Muriel and at dinner she appeared like her old self, so that he even believed he had wronged her.

Muriel retired early. Her husband was at work in the room amid the relics of human wrecks and the paraphernalia for catching men.

She tried to read. She always read in bed. This night she had an oppressed feeling, one which made her breathe with difficulty, as though something were impending.

People under the influence of a tremendous strain have a super-sensitive nature which in a subconscious manner records events about to transpire. Scientists may poo-poo the statement, but many persons recall some such circumstance.

Muriel could not sleep. She tossed feverishly in the bed. At last she arose and attired only in a silken night robe sat down at her table and tried again to read. It was fruitless. She thought up and poured over completely to her thoughts.

Eric after leaving Muriel was as one in a delightful dream. Only the recollection of the danger he ran from the police brought him to his senses.

It was really his first love affair. Hitherto he had been a student of sociology and governmental mistakes.

At bottom he was merciful, kind and gentle. When his mind centered upon radical reform he could not escape the best of his thoughts. Consequences did not concern him. He felt that the only hope for the human race was to liberate it. To make it not only free to act, but to make it think free, to believe itself free. This attitude made him a dangerous man to society. Muriel had seen only the other side of him and not for worlds would he allow Muriel to know who he was. His thoughts were of the future. He was wending his way to the home of Gerald York to destroy the damaging evidence against himself and his confederates.

It was almost two o'clock when Eric entered the house of the chief of detectives.

He broke a pane of glass in the conservatory door and slipping his arm through the hole released the latch and entered. He silently made his way along the long hall until he heard Gerald York.

The chief had been disturbed by the breaking of the glass. Eric swiftly ran to the end of the long hall and noiselessly placed his hand on the knob of Muriel's door.

She sat at the table as though spell-bound. She had heard no noise until the slight rattle of the knob awakened her from her reverie. She watched the knob as though fascinated. Her robe fell from her shoulders. She leaped far out from the door. The door swung swiftly in and Eric entered and hastily swung the door into a closed position. As he turned she saw him, and he, her. Both remained for a few seconds almost terror-stricken.

Then Eric dropped to his knees. As he did so his pistol, lantern and skeleton keys fell to the floor beside him.

or whatever it is that a combative force utilizes when it wants to surrender in the cause of humanity.

As soon as they were alone Hetty turned to her friend.

"Oh, Sara, can't you go without me? Tell them that I am ill—suddenly ill. I—I don't think it right or honorable of me to accept."

Sara shook her head, and the words died on the girl's lips.

"You must play the game, Hetty."

"It's—very hard," murmured the other, her face very white and bleak.

"I know, my dear," said Sara gently. "If they should ever find out," gasped the girl, suddenly giving way to the dread that had been lying dormant all these months.

"They will never know the truth unless you choose to enlighten them," said Sara, putting her arm about the girl's shoulders and drawing her close.

"You never cease to be wonderful. Sara—so very wonderful," cried the girl, with a look of worship in her eyes.

Sara regarded her in silence for a moment, reflecting. Then, with a swift rush of tears to her eyes, she cried fiercely:

"You must never, never tell me all that happened, Hetty! You must not speak it with your own lips."

Hetty's eyes grew dark with pain and wonder.

"That is the thing I can't understand in you, Sara," she said slowly.

"We must not speak of it!"

Hetty's bosom heaved. "Speak of it!" she cried, absolute agony in her voice. "Have I not kept it locked in my heart since that awful day—"

E. L. Compton and daughter Chere dal Callista of Harmon were in Dixon Friday.

He had not the heart to tell her who he was, nor why he was there.

"I came because I knew who you were and I wanted to see you. I could not help it. Oh! God, I could not help," he said. Muriel took his head in her arms and drew it close to her breast. Neither spoke. She looked far away and spoke to him low, so that her voice was scarcely audible even four feet away.

"I love you," she said. "I love you," and she raised his chin so that his lips came slowly to hers. It was a pure kiss. It was the birth of a great emotion. They gazed into each other's eyes. She twined her fingers in his hair and spoke to him low, so that her voice was scarcely audible even four feet away.

"Muriel," he said.

"Muriel," she answered; "how did you know my name?"

"I remember the story of your marriage. I read it in the papers. I thought how unholily wedlock is when such men as Gerald York can marry a pure, sweet maiden like you. The newspaper account said you were beautiful. The name Muriel attracted me. It was my mother's."

"Oscar," she whispered, "I love you; tell me again and again you love me. Hold me, dear."

Eric took her in his arms. He could not bring himself to realize wrong with this woman he held so tightly in his embrace. He kissed her again and again. As they were entwined in each other's arms the sound of footsteps was heard through the door which lead to Gerald's room.

"My husband," whispered Muriel. "Quick! that door; run. Do not let him find you here."

Eric stooped and took up his pistol and keys from the floor. He fumbled at the door and as he did so his right hand came into contact with the whitened tile floor of the door jam. His fingers were wet with the perspiration brought on by sudden fear of exposure, and this moisture left his finger prints upon the door.

He ran down the hall and left the house as he had entered it.

Gerald York was not certain he had heard the sound of breaking glass. He waited long enough to permit Eric to effect his escape into Muriel's room.

Then he recalled the card. Possibly the lover was even now with Muriel.

He crept to his room and entered it. Indiscreetly he had rubbed against a chair in the dark. This was the sound which warned Muriel and Eric.

Muriel hastily sprang into bed and turned out her reading lamp. Gerald cautiously opened his door and peered into the room. He switched on the electric lights and saw his wife in bed peacefully sleeping.

He smiled and felt a great relief. His jealousy left him entirely. He descended the stairs to his library and reclined in the chair. He at length fell asleep in his chair. It was not so with Muriel. She thrilled throughout her entire being. The kisses of Eric had awakened her soul. This spark had burst into a flame and the whole of her world was a sea of storm-tossed emotion.

Where would it all lead? How would it end? "I love him," she said to herself again and again. Toward morning she dropped into a restless sleep.

U. S. RECOGNITION FOR REBEL CHIEFS?

Foreign Property Owners in Mexico Start Movement With Torreon Captured.

SEE WAY PAVED FOR PEACE

Huerta Forces Believed to Have Lost 5,500 in Dead, Wounded and Prisoners—Tampico May Next to Fall.

El Paso, Tex., April 4.—A movement was started by foreigners owning property in Mexico for an appeal to Washington to recognize the Carranza government. Meantime federal sympathizers estimated that the Huerta forces lost 5,500 men in dead, wounded and prisoners in Torreon's fall. Velasco was said to be trying to join the federal garrison of 4,000 at Monterey with the rest of his original force of 9,000 men. Gen. Pablo Gonzales is operating near Monterey with 3,000 rebels.

The effect of the rebel victory at Torreon was felt here in a stiffening of the market for constitutional money.

Torreon, Mex., April 4.—Gen. Francisco Villa and the main part of his exhausted but triumphant constitutional army took cognizance of the horrors of war in the stronghold they had captured by the light of blazing buildings while they stumbled over and trampled on the bodies of slain federal soldiers in the pursuit of the fleeing remnant of the Huerta force of defenders.

Dawn showed what the gallant defenders of Torreon went through before they fled. The streets were strewn with dead, sewers were clogged and over the city hung the odor of burning and decomposing human flesh. Everywhere was ruin, business buildings down, homes destroyed, misery and wretchedness.

Determined that not a man of the garrison should escape him, Villa sent columns south and east in pursuit of the fleeing federals. Some returned before night with prisoners and reports of battles in which no man escaped. Some were still out.

Villa Executes Old Allies.

Villa paced up and down his headquarters in the Cuartel General, feverishly impatient of news of the capture of General Velasco, chief of the federals, but it did not come. There were executions during the day, many in fact, but the lives taken were the lives of men that Villa long ago declared forfeit. These men were the followers of General Orozco, who fought for Madero in 1910 and 1911 when Villa and Orozco fought side by side against Porfirio Diaz, but who followed Orozco into the rebellion against Madero in 1911, which sent Villa back to banditry and later made him leader of Carranza's forces in the war against Huerta.

Kill 100 in New Battle.

Generals Hernandez and Ortega, after a 25-mile chase, caught up with one of the detachments at San Pedro. There were only 253 federals, but when cornered they turned and made a desperate fight against overwhelming odds. One hundred federals were killed within ten minutes of fighting. The rest threw down their arms and were brought back prisoners. They were ragged, thin with hunger and exhaustion, their hair and beards matted with blood and dirt. Despair was written on every feature.

Dead in Path of Flight.

Columns of constitutionalist cavalry continued to scour the country in every direction for fleeing federals. Officers who returned from the pursuit said that the trails leading eastward were strewn with dead and wounded; that everywhere were rifles, pistols and other equipment of the fugitives, thrown away in flight. General Villa admitted 500 of his men were killed and 1,500 injured, but it was believed generally the figures would be much larger. The ill and wounded were quartered wherever places could be found for them.

Huerta Men to Quit Tampico.

Washington, April 4.—Following official advice from George C. Carothers, American consular agent at Torreon, of the flight of the Mexican federal troops from that city, came a prediction from Rear Admiral Fletcher that the important gulf port of Tampico probably would be abandoned by the federals without a fight.

Believe Huerta Doomed.

City of Mexico, April 4.—The government persisted in denying that Torreon had fallen. No word of the defeat of the government forces had reached the people through the newspapers. Among foreigners the opinion was that the loss of Torreon was a blow from which Huerta never would recover.

Vera Cruz, April 4.—John Lind delayed his departure for the United States until Monday.

REVOLT AGAINST SECRET SESSIONS

La Follette Leads Outbreak in Senate After Daniels Is Confirmed.

WILL DEFY ALL RULES

Opposition Charges Bad Faith After Split in Majority Delays Fight on Wilson's Selection for Commerce Commission.

Washington, April 4.—Nine members of the senate, headed by Senator La Follette, openly revolted against proceedings behind closed doors after an executive session in which the senate, by a vote of 36 to 27, confirmed the nomination of Winthrop M. Daniels of New Jersey to be a member of the interstate commerce commission.

Senator La Follette declared on the floor that he proposed to defy the rules of the senate in future and discuss publicly legislation not affecting foreign relations and later it was announced that Senators Bristow, Cummins, Clapp, Kenyon, Norris, Jones and Gronna, Republicans, and Poin-dexter, Progressive, would maintain the same attitude.

Sensation Over Revolt.

The revolt created a sensation and there was much speculation as to the effect it would have upon future executive sessions. The general opinion was that there would be no attempt to take action against members who disregarded the rule of secrecy.

Confirmation of Commissioner Daniels closed a three-day fight marked by one of the bitterest debates heard at the capitol in years.

Both sides contested determinedly. Mr. Daniels' advocates having the support of President Wilson's well-known desire that his appointee and personal friend be confirmed without delay.

Object to Daniels' Views.

Opponents to the confirmation based their objection on the ground that Mr. Daniels' views on the valuation of public service property were unsound.

The senate voted down a motion to remove the pledge of secrecy as to the session and immediately began consideration of another nomination behind closed doors.

Senator Clapp said that executive sessions, except to consider matters of great public danger, were certain to be abolished before very long.

"WIDOW" IS GIVEN WEALTH

Louisville Woman's Suit Is Compromised.

Louisville, Ky., April 4.—Compromise by which Mrs. Ellen J. Golden, or Ewald, will receive $300,000 cash and $10,000 a year from the $4,000,000 estate of a deceased iron master, L. P. Ewald, was agreed on by opposing counsel. This is expected to end the suit for $1,750,000 in which the former St. Louis woman attempted to prove herself the common-law widow of the millionaire. Under the agreement, which the court is expected to approve and make final today, Harry Ewald and Rose Damon, Ewald's brother and sister, get $50,000 each, but the custody of Ellen Golden's three children, to whom Ewald left his fortune after adopting them, remains with the Fidelity & Columbia Trust company as executor. It is expected the court will adjudge Mrs. Golden the common-law widow of Ewald.

ALBANIANS REPULSE GREEKS

Many Persons Are Killed in Battle at Koritsa.

Vienna, April 4.—A report that Koritsa was in flames, that many persons had been killed and that Greek irregular soldiers were attacking that city fiercely was received from Avlona, Albania. The same forces were attacking also other towns on the Argyro-Castro line. A later dispatch reported that the Albanians were reinforced and repulsed the attack on Koritsa.

SHAW WANTS MOTHERS PAID

English Playwright Suggests $10,000 Fee for Women.

London, April 4.—George Bernard Shaw thinks that child bearing ought to be a paid profession. He told a meeting of the Fabian society that if he were a woman his fee for becoming a mother would be $10,000. Mr. Shaw said a woman ought resolutely to refuse to have children unless she was paid for so doing.

Torpedo Boat to Become Target.

ATLANTAN IS SAVED?

Phagan Girl's Slayer Known,
Says Burns.

Detective Declares That Leo Frank
Will Not Hang on April 17—Sees
No Mystery in Case.

Chicago, April 4.—"The real mur-derer of Mary Phagan in Atlanta, Ga., has been found. Leo M. Frank will not hang on April 17."

In that fashion William J. Burns, head of the Burns Detective Agency, announced his solution of the mystery that has set all of Georgia and much of the rest of the country by the ears. The detective arrived in Chicago over the Atchison, Topeka &
Santa Fe from Kansas City, Mo., where he has been clearing up a number of points in connection with this case.

"I don't want to say anything that I have no right to say," he continued.
"and I can't say who the murderer is —whether Frank or some one else.
But I know who he is; I can prove that he committed the murder and it is a safe assumption that Frank will not be hanged on the date set for his execution."

"I want to say," the detective asserted, "that there was not a particle of mystery in the case. The most important points were lost sight of in the public clamor. When the obstructions had been cleared away everything was plain. By the application of a little common sense any one could have accomplished all that I accomplished as quickly as I did.
"I undertook the case with the understanding that I was not employed to thwart justice. The murder was singularly atrocious and the murderer should get the extreme penalty. If I arrived at the conclusion that Frank was guilty it was understood that I was to say so. When I got to work and had come to some conclusions in the matter I decided that public clamor had been largely responsible for Frank's conviction, because it was charged that he was abnormal.
"The attempt to prove him so was more atrocious, in my opinion, than to charge him with murder. I was astounded when I met him. There was absolutely nothing about him that suggested the abnormal characteristics charged."

scheduled to play at Florence in the afternoon, but was delayed several hours at Glenwood Springs because Barner of Glenwood Springs and Mr.
Gaven, an enthusiastic sportsman of that place, offered the freedom of the city to the Sox, but the Sox were anxious to continue as quickly as possible so the offer was refused.

SUBMARINE IS NEARLY LOST

British Submersible Hits Ship's Propeller in Rising After Maneuvers.
London, April 4.—While rising after having been submerged during a sham attack off Harwich, Essex, submarine
G-2 struck the propeller of a gunboat.
The periscope and part of the conning tower of the submarine were torn away by the impact and only the coolness of her officers and crew prevented her from sinking.

Noted Iowa Auto Racer Dying.
Des Moines, Ia., April 4.—Fred Dusenberg, noted Iowa auto racer, is near death at his home in Des Moines.

SOLID PEOPLE

A SOLID MAN
wants to feel safe when he sits or lies down—doesn't want to take any chances on landing on the floor with a broken back and a broken commandment. We carry a line of chairs, sofas and bedsteads that would sustain these men if they could get on. It's partly in the material, more in the making. This line is right in both respects.
